

Position Description for PA Licensed Mental Health Therapist

Headquartered in Sewickley, Pennsylvania, Samaritan Counseling, Guidance, Consulting is looking for exceptional, part-time and full-time therapists to serve our two new locations in Oakmont and Aspinwall. If you are a compassionate, licensed therapist who is ready to:

- Take control over your own work/life balance
- Be generously reimbursed for your productivity
- Connect to a creative community of therapists who support and encourage one another then, we would like to talk to you. We offer positive peer guidance designed to enhance each others' skill and practice as a way of encouraging a high level of therapy and care.

Samaritan therapists are special people. We foster hope, healing, and change for men, women, and children by attending to their mental, emotional, relational and spiritual lives. We are sensitive to all the faith, beliefs, and religious or non-religious traditions of the people we serve. We also serve all people, without discriminating on ANY basis, and welcome people with or without faith or religious practices.

Samaritan offers our therapists encouragement and opportunities to:

- Use their skills and specialty areas to develop and present workshops, groups, and other creative events in the communities we serve.
- Develop their personal and professional growth, including CEU-accredited groups and training.

Experienced working with adults, children, adolescents, and couples preferred, but we are not opposed to making an exception for the right candidate. However, all candidates must be PA state licensed.

Samaritan provides competitive reimbursement, healthcare benefits, paid time-off, an IRA plan, and opportunities for continuing education. In compliance with the CDC's health mitigation guidelines, we are currently providing video and phone therapy or in-person sessions where social distancing can be accommodated.

If you are a PA licensed therapist who is interested in a part or full-time position, please forward your resume to: Susan Young, Clinical Director at syoung@samaritancounseling.net

About Samaritan

Founded in 1982, Samaritan Counseling, Guidance, Consulting is a nonprofit counseling center that serves men, women, and children from multiple locations in Western Pennsylvania. As counselors, we provide professional counseling while showing compassion, and never passing judgment. We provide guidance through coaching, spiritual direction, anger management, and support groups. As consultants, we serve pastors and congregations to help them enrich their ministries. We offer educational workshops for couples, parents, families, and the community at-large. Samaritan's culture fosters a spirit of caring, trust, encouragement, diversity, and growth among our employees.

Our state-licensed therapists empower clients, from all backgrounds and faiths, to achieve mental and emotional wellness. Samaritan therapists utilize the most up-to-date clinical best practices and counsel from a holistic approach. We serve all people without discriminating on ANY basis, including inability to pay. For any client desiring a faith-based approach to his/her counseling, our therapists will provide it based on that person's individual faith/religious beliefs.

Samaritan accepts most major insurances and offers a program that provides fee subsidies for those lacking the resources to pay. During the pandemic, we comply with the Center for Disease Control (CDC) health mitigation guidelines, and offer services via teletherapy.
